

Antonia Tieber studied Law at the University of Vienna from October 2015 to October 2020. She received merit scholarships from the University of Vienna and the Higher Education Scholarship Foundation for Law students in recognition of her academic achievements.

During her studies, she developed a strong interest in Civil Procedure Law, focusing her coursework accordingly. These academic pursuits led her to short educational trips to Switzerland, where she enhanced her comparative legal perspective.

From February to June 2020, she pursued studies at Katholieke Universiteit Leuven in Belgium.

Currently, she is pursuing a PhD in Law (in the field of Civil Procedure Law) at the University of Vienna.

She has plans for a research stay at the Max-Planck-Institut Hamburg from February to March 2024.

She actively contributes to Scientists for Future (S4F) in a voluntary capacity.

From April 2019 to February 2021, she worked as a student assistant at the Institute for Civil Procedure Law at the University of Vienna.

Since April 2021, she has been a Research Assistant at the same institute, initially working with Univ.-Prof. i.R. Dr. Konecny and now with Univ.-Prof. Dr. Koller.

Her research focuses on Civil Procedure Law, with a particular emphasis on Enforcement Law. Additionally, she conducts research on Fundamental Rights and their implications in legal procedures.
